Know the Laws

by FRED CROSTER

Even in these days of changes in the game, 'modern' thinking, 'the penalty and the boot is king' and so on, one aspect which must never be in dispute is that the scoring of a try is the ultimate for all concerned.

And yet I wonder if it is sufficiently realised that, not long ago, a significant change came about concerning the scoring of a try.

Until then it was imperative that downward pressure was exerted on the ball. We can all recall many apparently good tries being disallowed because the ref., decided that this pressure was not sufficient.

The change ruled out this clause. Now, and I quote Law 12, 'Try and Touch-down'

"Grounding the ball is the act of a player who

(a) while holding the ball in hishand (or hands) or arm (or arms) brings the ball in contact with the ground". No mention of pressure!

A little bit more though. The above holds good when the ball is in the possession of the player. If it is on the ground then that pressure must still be exerted by hand or arm but the try, or minor would hold good if he were to fall upon it and the ball was anywhere under the front of his body from the waist to theneck.

Fair enough.

For all those who enjoy these little bits of Law enlightenment, a Quiz again during the Christmas programmes. Questions Saturday, answers Monday. I believe I still owe Danny Davies a pint from last year. He had them all right. How did you get on? Have a go again this year.
