Cardiff v. Barbarians

SATURDAY 10th APRIL, 1993 KICK-OFF 2.30 p.m.

VOL. 2 ISSUE 16

THE REMARKABLE Bridgend jinx — Cardiff has not won at the Brewery Field since 1984-85 and only once, indeed, since 1978 — stayed firmly with us on Wednesday evening with the result that a season which had promised so much at one stage is fading into the mists of what-might-have-been.

The early stages at Bridgend had been satisfactory enough as we moved comfortably into a 14-3 lead but it was not to be and we stumbled thereafter to our heaviest defeat of the season.

Yet if someone had promised seven months ago that Cardiff would finish a respectable third in the league and provide en route such entertaining football, most followers would have been happy.

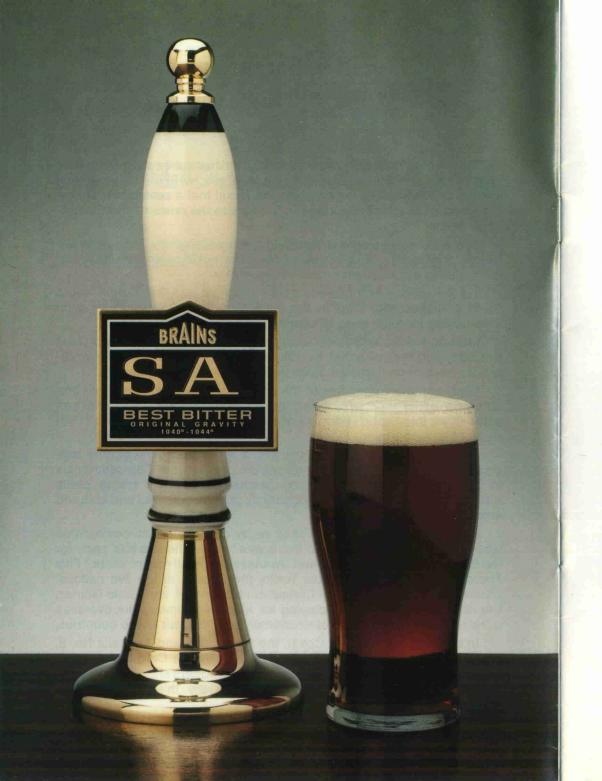

More important, and the two remaining matches against Newport next Saturday and Swansea may fully illustrate the point, the seeds for whatwill-be have been nurtured. Even better times may lie ahead.

What with the exigencies of the League and the unhappy strife and bitterness at the very top of Welsh rugby, it is with some relief that we can settle down this Easter Saturday afternoon to relax and enjoy the 109th visit of the Barbarians.

As always, the club, its officials and players are truly welcome and, despite the counter-attractions elsewhere of Pilkington Cup semi-finals in England and a full Heineken League programme taking place elsewhere in Wales, they will undoubtedly provide colourful and cultured entertainment.

Indeed, David Hands, The Times rugby correspondent, commented when the party was announced that it was "as illustrious a tour party for the Easter games with Cardiff and Swansea as any of recent years." Five Frenchmen, including Francois Tordo, the captain of the five nations' champions, Gareth Rees, the Canadian outside-half, and Fabio Gomez, the Argentinian scrum-half playing for Milan, are among the overseas attractions. There are also internationals from the four home countries.

In addition, there's Troy Coker, the Harlequins and Australia No. 8, who was only recently to be seen and heard in the Cardiff clubhouse extolling the virtues of his home country to supporters showing interest in following Cardiff on their tour down under later this year. There is, incidentally, more news of that visit for followers on the Miscellany pages.

We welcome also this afternoon and give special thanks to the sponsors of the match and of the Barbarians, Scottish Amicable, who will once more also be giving £300 to Welsh youth rugby for every try scored by the Barbarians today; it will be an ill wind that blows some considerable good if they run in several tries.

The Cardiff matches in 1991 and 1992 contributed £3,600 to the current Amicable Gesture of £35,350 as the Barbarians scored five tries on each occasion. In all modesty, it should be pointed out that Cardiff also scored five tries on each occasion despite the respective defeats by 42-25 and 26-25.

The Baa-Baas thus clawed back two "points" in the series which, since the inaugural game in the Barbarians first year of 1890-91, has brought 68 victories to Cardiff and 35 to the visitors, with five matches drawn. Cardiff have scored 1,702 points, the Barbarians 1,131.

Long, then, has been the association with the two clubs. Indeed, two Cardiff players — H.M. Ingledew and R.B. Sweet-Escott — were "original" Barbarians in that they played in the first ever match against Bradford in 1890 and, overall, well over 100 Cardiff players have represented the famous club without a ground of its own.

GROWING THROUGHOUT WALES

MISCELLANY... reporting on news and views from CARDIFF ARMS PARK

JUST A DROP ...

Dr. JACK MATTHEWS had many memorable matches for Cardiff and, indeed, for the Barbarians but the Baa Baas visit to Cardiff on April 20, 1946, for their first meeting after the war was unique for him.

In 180 appearances for the club between 1945 and 1953, he scored 54 tries but only once did he drop a goal — that day against the Barbarians during his first year as Cardiff captains

"Not only was it the only time I dropped a goal but I did it withy my left foot which I used normally only to stand on. In fact, I couldn't kick with either foot. I received an awkward pass low down and could not think what else to do," Dr. Jack remembered this week.

Although he also scored a try that day, Cardiff were beaten 10-9.

... AND ST. JUST THE JOB

ABOUT MORE recent veterans and in between hiccoughs and threats of libel actions, news is coming through of last weekend's visit to Cornwall by the Cardiff Veterans team, who managed to preserve their four-year unbeaten record with a victory over St. Just's Veterans by 90-something to 30-something.

"For some reason the referee played 40 minutes each way," said one sore Cardiff vet later, "but the match did reveal some sterling performances."

One such was by the 53-year-old John Harding who scored the final try in the narrow win — while Norris McWhirter is being approached to see whether Cardiff's Nos. 9 and 10 can qualify for a place in the Guinness Book of Sporting Records as the heaviest ever half-back pairing. With Chris Collins at out-half and Andy Gillham inside him it may take some beating.

Certain tactical failings which would have made Alex Evans even more hairless were revealed. On one occasion, for example, the "Arrow" was called.

The basis is simple enough: on being given a scrum, your backs line up in a completely straight line behind the out-half so that the opposition does not know which way you will break.

The problem was that the redoubtable Jose Souto lost the ball against the head — no mean feat in a game in which pushing in the scrum is forbidden. In turn, this resulted in the opposition scrum-half being given the freedom of the park to score.

More happily, John (Jack or Jed) Davies managed to avoid falling over the lucky stile this year but Miscellany will not go into details as to why Russell Gardner—star of TV since his exploits on a "swop" with a Boston policeman were revealed on screen—had to leave the field during the game

And we have been asked to warn those contemplating next year's Cornish visit that the costs may rise in order to hire a low loader for Bill Atwell's equipment.

Finally, no travel details will again be in the hands of Tony Mogridge — not any of them. Paul "Pablo" Rees managed under Tony's advice to arrive in Penzance for a 6.30 kick off when the match was being played at St. Just at 5.30.

And, absolutely finally, there's just the chance that you can see these vets in action for yourself: they are trying to arrange a match with Llanharan Vets at the Arms Park in order to reciprocate earlier in the season hospitality.

MATCH OF THE DAY

WEDDING BELLS rang today for the popular and impish Cardiff scrum-half Andy Moore and his school-teaching bride Alexandra Cox.

This important match at St. Martin's, Caerphilly, may also explain some gaps, along with the spin-off from Wednesday's crucial fixture at Bridgend, in today's Arms Park line-up as Messrs. Nigel Walker, Adrian Davies, Stuart Roy, Howard Stone and Mike Rayer were among those invited to hurl confetti at our bottle-scarred — sorry that should read battle-scarred — sorry that should read battle-scarred — No. 9, whose best man was that other impish, popular etc. inside-half Andy Booth.

"If I couldn't play, then I had to make sure he didn't either," said Andy Moore this week when he was concerned also that a further bump on his nose would spoil irrevocably not only his features but more importantly the wedding photos.

Players do take fitness seriously nowadays. The honeymoon is being spent at Champneys, a luxury health resort.

COLLECTORS ITEMS

CARDIFF FOLLOWERS interested in memorabilia may not be aware of the Rugby Programme Club, a non-profit making organisation which has been running since 1985.

KANGAROOS, KOALAS, CROCS – AND CARDIFF, TOO

TRIP OF A LIFETIME? Certainly, the itinerary and opportunities offered to Cardiff followers who join the tour to Australia later in the summer have a mouth-watering prospect.

See Sydney, Canberra, the Great Barrier Reef, the Gold Coast, giant crocodiles, cuddly koala bears ... oh, yes, and some rugby as well.

Followers making the tour, the basic cost of which is about £1,630 and which includes all air fares (London-Sydney and back with BA as well as internal flights from Sydney to Brisbane, Brisbane to Cairns and back to Brisbane), hotel accommodation with continental breakfasts, coach transfers and some sightseeing trips, will have a great time.

And as well as watching Cardiff play in Sydney, Canberra, Brisbane (against Queensland) and Cairns, tickets are provided for the first test between Australia and South Africa in Sydney.

The tour, leaving on July 29 and returning August 16, has been planned by Richard Leslie, of Complete Corporate Travel Ltd. of Brisbane who himself toured Wales with the all-conquering Australia Youth side of 1977.

Further details are available from the Commercial Department and those interested should write to Tina Nash at Cardiff RFC, The Arms Park, Westgate Street, Cardiff, marking the envelope "Australian Tour".

There will also be a meeting about the tour in the top lounge at the Clubhouse at 7pm on Wednesday, April 21 before the monthly lottery draw, at which videos will be shown of some of the attractions of the trip.

It produces a magazine for members every two months which includes, among other things, articles on programmes, reviews of tours, historical and statistical comment, future programme supply services and details of spare and sought-after programmes.

There are members in each major rugbyplaying country and anyone interested should write to Dave Fox at 9, Pine Close, Thornbury, Bristol BS12 1AS, enclosing an A5 stamped addressed envelope. Membership is £5 a year.

Richard Cottell, a Cardiff supporter and member of Rugby Programme Club, has kindly sent Miscellany a recent copy of the club's 24-page magazine — and interesting reading it is too

What is more, the club may hold a fayre at the Athletic Club during May.

SMELL OF SWEET SUCCESS

THE HOSPITALITY SUITES at either end of the Arms Park are by now a familiar sight, generally crowded on match days and used frequently for meetings throughout the week.

CAR PARKERS beware the gates to the car park in Park Street near the Empire Pool will be closed an hour after the whistle at every home match, including this afternoon. You are advised to move your car before then as no key will be available.

Rugby Quiz

Something old, something new... a short quiz to test the knowledge, bring back memories and perhaps to stir the odd discussion...

- Probably the most frequently seen televised try is that by Gareth Edwards for the Barbarians against New Zealand in Cardiff in January 1973. Which other Cardiff player scored for the Baa-Baas that day?
- 2. In which English city did the Barbarians play their first match in 1890 and to which they returned in their centenary year?
- 3. At Easter 1991, the Barbarians beat Cardiff by a record 42-25 on a perfect spring afternoon. Who scored four tries for the Barbarians that day?
- 4. The previous highest score by the Baa-Baas against Cardiff was the 40 points (to nil) in 1957. Tony O'Reilly and Phil Thompson both scored two tries but who scored three?
- 5. Which two Cardiff back-row men played for injury hit Swansea when they beat the Barbarians 33-31 at Easter 1991?

NO QUESTION.

QUIDNUNC'S COLUMN

MERVYN JOHN, the Chairman of Cardiff Rugby Football Club, was in the eyes and opinions of many qualified observers one of the finest of the club's players never to have won a Welsh cap.

Today, he not unnaturally regrets the lack of opportunity but is characteristically modest about it. "At the time I must admit that I thought I was as good though not better than any one around but a man by the name of John Taylor arrived from nowhere when I was being tipped for a cap. The more I saw him, the more I realised that John was something else."

But Mervyn has one even bigger disappointment in his playing career, which saw him make 319 first team appearances between 1967-68 and 1978-79, brought him 84 tries and during which he was vice-captain twice and captain in 1974-75.

This afternoon, that disappointment will not show itself but there is nevertheless a poignancy in the fact that Mervyn John never became a Barbarian.

He was born with just the one Christian name at Senghenydd in March 1945. His sister has just the one forename also "because my mother said she did not want to write several names for both of us when filling in ration books!" Educated at Caerphilly G.S. and at University College, Cardiff (where he earned a BA Hons degree in history), his rugby career highlights were limited to a final schoolboy trial where a youngster named Terry Cobner won the selectors' vote. Mervyn played for Senghenydd, had a couple of games with Bridgend and then, in December 1967, he came to Cardiff and has been connected with the club ever since.

His impact was explosive. In his first full season, 1968-69, he was capped after playing 25 matches but, in scoring 13 tries, the flanker beat the previous scoring record for a forward, held previously by Les Spence and Cliff Howe. He was to beat his own record in 1972-73 - as, indeed, was Roger Lane - with 16 tries.

And, for those who believe that too much rugby is played by senior men today, it can be pointed out that in season 1972-73, during which 53 matches were played including a tour to Rhodesia, Mervyn John played in 51 of them. In that Rhodesian tour, incidentally, and during which a "test"" was played against the host country, Mervyn John scored in all five matches. Those whose memories stretch back that far may remember the names of Roger Beard, Carl Smith and Garry Davies; they all played more than 40 matches that season which had also seen the introduction of the four-point try.

But I digress. Off the field, Mervyn is a quiet though very firm individual. Married to Denise, they have two sons, Nick, aged 16 and who plays Welsh League soccer with Tondu, and Chris, who is 20 and who, of course, has played at out-half and as replacement substitute full back for Cardiff this season.

Chris's presence, the Chairman admits, does cause him a little embarrassment. "It can be unfair on a player to have a father too closely involved and I did think of resigning to ensure there was no bias but, at the end of the day, if he is good enough, he will come through - possibly settling at out-half."

Rugby football and skiing are the two major passions of a life which leaves little time for anything else other than work. "I read so many books to earn my history degree that I vowed never to read another. Sport is the only thing I watch on television and my friends tell me that I am like the man in One Foot in the Grave who hates soaps. I don't even have time to play golf any more," (he is a member of Royal Porthcawl close to his home and next to which Denise works at a nursery school).

But that's not to say that he does not have weaknesses. Oh yes, he does, indeed. Profiteroles and, indeed, puddings of any and every sort. He demands a dish for his sweet course and not a plate so that he can load it with cream and other goodies. On a visit to Switzerland earlier this year, indeed, his skiing companions actually bought

KNOW THE LAWS

J. E. MALCOLM THOMAS
Today, Malcolm takes a look at how some of the new laws have affected the game.

As the rugby season draws to its conclusion, it is time to assess what impact some of the new laws have had on the game.

There has been very little improvement in the Line-out, and it remains a complete shambles. It is too complex and difficult to referee correctly. Gaps are being ignored, players are being allowed to take the opposition out of the game, and players are allowed to go through the line-out too quickly, and some are even allowed to catch a quick deflection from the opposition.

In this complex area, referees are advised to concentrate more on what players are doing to the opposition rather than to their own players.

Sadly, the quick throw-in has almost become a non-event with the formed line-out always taking priority over a quick throw-in.

Pile-ups are still a real feature in many games because of "sympathetic refereeing". Referees are allowing far too much time for the ball to be released or emerge. This results in referees looking for penalties and looking for imaginary offside lines. The pile-up does not exist in law, therefore referees should blow up quicker. I am sure that both sides would readily accept the scrummage rather than a penalty.

In some of the matches I have observed this season, the team going forward can do no wrong whilst the opposition can do no right. The same law should apply to both sides.

However, there has been a marked improvement in the scrummage formation. The scrummage is being refereed much better and more consistently and there is far less collapsing. It is interesting to note that the dummy pass by the scrum half has almost become a non-entity.

One law which has had a tremendous impact is the side that kicks a penalty kick directly into touch retains possession of the ball at the ensuing throw-in. Welsh rugby must learn this lesson.

him a special "Mervyn's Dish" to accommodate such sweet-toothed necessities. He likes his lager but never drinks shorts ("I can't even stand the smell of whisky and brandy") and, although he has a large garden, he is not in the least greenfingered. "It's mostly grass and I have a sit-and-ride mower to sort it out."

He also has a further curious discipline. Mervyn John goes to bed at midnight. Not at twenty-to-twelve, not at twenty-past but midnight. On the dot, Every night.

Mervyn has been known to sing "Apache" rather better even than lan Robinson and, on this musical theme for a moment, he also used to play the euphonium with the Windsor Colliery Brass Band in his youthful days. He could play a mean trumpet, too.

Rugby wise, apart from his lengthy first-team spell, he captained an unbeaten Rags team, he is in his second spell as chairman, he captained Glamorgan in the south of France, played for a Welsh XV that "opened" the London Welsh clubhouse, went back to Rhodesia as assistant manager, took Cardiff to New Zealand in 1988 as manager and will be in charge of the party to Australia this summer.

Mervyn also has a bizarre habit of attending fancy dress events in curious costume. He has been seen as Eddie the Eagle, a clown, and, would you believe, as Anneka Rice. the mind boggles but then, as we were saying, he does like the "sweet" things of life
