Cardiff v. Dunvant

SATURDAY, APRIL 1st, 1995

KICK-OFF 2.30p.m.

ONE THING IS certain: as we move into the final month, no one can say it has been a dull old season.

Still in contention for the Heineken League title, in the quarter-finals of the SWALEC Cup, with a home tie against Aberavon to come next week and now with an even closer link likely with the Welsh World Cup team, April promises to provide some dramatic scenarios.

But beware. Dunvant, for example, will have travelled to Cardiff today in the knowledge that victory could virtually ensure them of first division survival. Aberavon will come next Saturday (no tickets for this one, incidentally, all pay at £8 and £4 on the day) with nothing to lose — and there are many more potential slips between the retention of the cup and the lip, as they say.

Then there's Newbridge away (this one to be shown live on BBC2 Wales — but we could do with the 'live' support) where all manner of sides and ambitions can come unstuck.

There's no April Fools Day joke, then, about the dangers that could kill what is potentially a magnificent season for the club.

For the moment, however, it is Dunvant we welcome to the Arms Park with, we hope, the warmth with which they convey to all who visit their Broadacre ground deep in suburban Swansea.

The rise of this club without household names is a romantic, even sensational, success story and while reluctant to offer anything more tangible that that welcome to their ebullient president David Vaughan, the committee, team and followers, there will be many on the ground today who would mourn their departure from the top league if the worst did come to the worst.

History is against them insofar as the teams have met on three occasions, with Cardiff winning all three while scoring 90 points against 19. Will April 1 throw up a joker?

TWO CHANCES TO SEE UNBEATEN YOUTH

THE CARDIFF Youth team have been capturing a few headlines these past few weeks.

Still unbeaten after 25 matches, they have reached the finals of the Welsh Youth Cup and have also won Youth Team of the Month title from Rugby News magazine.

There are a couple of excellent opportunities in the next fortnight to see for yourselves what their team manager and Cardiff committee man Jim O'Donnell calls "the best side we have had at this level for 25 years."

Next Wednesday, at the National Ground next door, the lads meet Pontypool in the Welsh Youth Cup Final (kick-off 6.30 p.m.).

Then, on Easter Saturday, April 15, as a curtain raiser to the Cardiff-Barbarians match, the Youth team will entertain Crawshay's Youth in what should be an outstanding afternoon's entertainment.

Individually, there have been further honours, too. When the Welsh Under 18s travel to Shannon to meet the Irish Under 18s next Sunday, Cardiff Youth scrum-half Andrew Driscoll and prop Matthew Davey will be in the side.

And, team-wise, the forthcoming attraction is a trip to Spain. On Easter Tuesday, they head off to Barcelona for a two-match tour.

WHY CRUCIAL KICK WAS NOT RECORDED

NOT THAT the wheels did not nearly come sadly off the rails during their cup semi-final with Aberystwyth at neutral Duntant the other Wednesday evening.

Two or three minutes from time and already 16-9 down, Cardiff conceded a penalty which Aberystwyth failed to convert.

IF YOU'VE noticed a new sparkle in the eye and a muscular spring in the leaping of big Derwyn Jones recently, then the two pictures here may give the answer.

Butcher Bernard Franks, who has the butchery concessions in the Kwik Save stores in Cowbridge Road East and at Danescourt, is sponsoring the giant lock up to the World Cup with a 1 lb sirloin steak every day and two chickens a week.

The sparkle could have come from the champagne (right) awarded by Laurent-Perrier for the man of the match in the last home league game against Treorchy.

Derwyn, named by Peter Jackson of the Daily Mail, is receiving his bottle from Mr Stephen Astbury of Laurent-Perrier, watched by Mr Nigel O'Sullivan, of Dragon Drinks, the match sponsor.

His beefy sponsorship is also rumoured to be being enjoyed by Derwyn's house-mates, Stuart Roy and Jonathan Humphreys, though the big policeman keeps a wary eye on theft.

Bernard Franks, curiously, is English. "I married a Welsh girl, have lived here for 18 years and am delighted to be able to help Derwyn reach peak fitness for Cardiff and for Wales," he says.

MORE MISCELLANY

"Had it gone over," says Jim Ryan, "there would have been no way back.

Instead, we were almost immediately awarded a penalty in their 22 and while everyone expected Andrew Driscoll to tap and go to the open side to try to score near the posts, he slung it the other way for Jason Kemble to go over near the corner.

15-14 and, from the touchline, Gafyn Cooper converted.

16-15 to us. They kick off, Jamie Ringer collects in our 22, and runs. And runs. He is tackled near their 22 but slips it out to John Colderley who scores. Gafyn misses this one from much closer — but we'd won."

Gafyn's father, behind the posts and recording on video that touchline conversion, became so excited as the ball made progress that the actual moment of truth is not on film as the camera is waved with such enthusiasm...

JOHN'S JOY...

JOHN COLDERLEY was then to make further news.

Not only did he score the decisive try which helped his school, St. Cyres of Penarth, to beat Tiffin and to win the National Schools Sevens tournament at Rosslyn Park but he was also named man of the tournament.

John had scored a hat-trick in the semi-final victory over Millfield for St. Cyres, who beat Glantaf among others and who are coached by John Huw Williams.

For John Huw, who also coaches Cardiff Institute at the top of the Fourth Division, and for John Colderley, to win the prestigious Open Under-19 title in front of a large crowd was triumph indeed.

...AND ANDY'S SADNESS

THIS IS, of course, the time of year when finals of all kinds are being decided.

Sadly, there was a less happy outcome for other Cardiff players when Swansea University were beaten 31-30 by the West London Institute of Higher Education in a magnificent finale to the British Universities Sports Association competition.

Leading 17-3 at half-time, they were beaten by a penalty goal deep into injury time.

In the Swansea side were Cardiff Under 21 players Andy Lewis, Paul Beard, who scored a try, and full-back Nick Ferns.

BRENDAN'S BONANZA

A RECENT winner of a different kind was former Cardiff full-back Brendan McAloon.

Brendan, now 38 and playing in the back-row for the redoubtable Fairwater, won the

WATCH NEXT SEASON IN STYLE

A SOMEWHAT different opportunity on the commercial side of the organisation comes with the news of the Cardiff Rugby Business Club being formed for next season.

"It will be an excellent and cost effective way for business people to entertain clients, colleagues and friends regularly over the season," says Tina Tew, the Cardiff Rugby Club commercial manager.

"The stylish and private facilities available to Business Club members will provide an ideal setting for combining business and pleasure," says Tina.

What, then, would you get for a one-off payment of only £1,250 (plus VAT)?

- Corporate membership — one car pass and four entry tickets for every League, friendly and Cup game played at the Club ground;
- Private lounge with bar facilities exclusive to CRBC members and available before and after every home first team fixture;
- Reserved seats in the south stand, adjacent to the committee box;
- Chef's speciality luncheon at each of the eleven league matches;
- £5 voucher refundable with a purchase of more than £30 at the club's souvenir shop.

If you want to know more, phone Tina on Cardiff 382006 — and there are only a limited number of places available.

Cardiff March lottery — and decided to take the cash rather than the car.

"I'm off to see the World Cup with people like Albert Francis and with them I think I'll need the cash," said the man whose team will be meeting Banwen in the final of the Welsh Brewers Cup at the Cardiff Arms Park National Ground on April 29.

Curiously, Brendan is the third "regular" from the Radyr Court pub to have won the lottery.

TV DRAMA

THE CRUCIAL Heineken League match between Newbridge and Cardiff on April 13 will be televised live on BBC2 Wales.

As a result, the kick-off has been brought forward to 7p.m.

QUIDNUNC'S COLUMN

HIS FORMER Llanelli colleagues have been quick to attempt to play down some of the powerful attributes of Emyr Wyn Lewis.

Big Emyr — he's about 6ft 4 and about 17 stone — had been known from his schooldays as Torw — the Bull. It arose first when he decided to take on the school bullies by the simple process of putting his head down and charging them.

But now those finks down West allege the nickname is incomplete. "You should see him on tour," reports one of them. "As soon as training is over, he'll pick up his sun-tan oil and a towel and head for the highest place around — as close to the sun as possible.

"That's why we call him Sitting Bull."

And if that makes Emyr a chief among the Indians in any pack, it makes him even more formidable.

But what made the Welsh-speaking part-time policeman leave such deep roots in the West — Carmarthen Athletic and Llanelli — to play for Cardiff? Why did he quit the Scarlets?

"I didn't quit. They got rid of me," he retorts instantly.

Now, Emyr is a quiet sort of guy who treats most things good-naturedly, preferring to smile than to be belligerent, but Quidnunc's suggestion that he was being perhaps disloyal was clearly undiplomatic.

"I admit I was not particularly enjoying my rugby at the end at Llanelli," says the man who now has 36 caps, at No 8 and at blindside, "and, when I was summoned before the committee, I explained that I wanted to play the traditional type of game the Scarlets played in their hey-day. They told me I was wrong and so they said I was in effect a part of their future plans.

"It seemed that Cardiff were playing that kind of rugby and I felt that Alec Evans could develop my game. And here I am."

Born on August 29, 1966, the Bull was initially a soccer player of some promise but, between the ages of 16 and 17, sprang up in size, joined Carmarthen Athletic youth and was quickly spotted by Roy Bergiers who took him to Llanelli under Gareth Jenkins who in turn "was impressed with the way I ran with the ball but with nothing else."

Off the pitch, he likes the odd heavy duty cider, loves fishing (and helping out his father at his Lampeter fish farm), collects ladies telephone numbers (he's single, girls), but denies watching television much. "I've only watched Eastenders twice," he claims, and then admits both occasions were in the past week.

Any conversation about Emyr inevitably comes back to the nose. As we talked, Delyth Morgan, a Welsh Women's international, came to join us and she had recently broken her nose.

"First time?" asked the Bull sympathetically.

"Yes," said Delyth. "You'll get used to it," said the Bull, "I've broken mine 133 times, I think."

GUEST APPEARANCE

JANINE STEPHENSON is unique in Welsh rugby writing. The only woman on the regular first division "circuit," Janine is an Australian who cut her journalistic teeth down under, now follows Dunvant for the SWANSEA EVENING POST, finds the rugby scene captivating but warns of the...

DANGERS WHEN PASSION BECOMES PAROCHIALISM

IN THE Thatcherite mid-80s consultancy was the business to be in. Management consultants, fashion consultants, consultant consultants... you name it.

Perhaps now, in Major's mid-90s, consultants are a little passé. But then again maybe they just might be the single facet from that notoriously greedy era that is worth giving another try.

And the Welsh Rugby Union should be at the head of the queue when the next generation of consultants come calling.

From an outsider's point of view the intensity and passion which swirls so vehemently around rugby in the Principality is one of its most captivating qualities and one no other country in the world can match.

Everyone doesn't just have an interest but a definite, abiding opinion. It is responsible for setting Welsh rugby apart from the game not just in the United Kingdom or the northern hemisphere but across the world.

But now in times of turmoil and dissatisfaction only rivalled by Ron Waldron's contentious reign, that passion is less flatteringly called parochialism.

It is a serious charge but one which is eminently defensible.

In fact, the WRU need only look next door at Cardiff's example to glimpse the way ahead.

It is an undeniable fact that Alex Evans has turned the Blue and Blacks around. He, too, is an outsider. He offers a new and different perspective.

The most difficult thing in the world is to stand outside of something you care fervently about and consider it objectively. But this is where Mr Evans and similarly "unattached" observers can do more good than an Arms Park full of subjective Welshmen. Outsiders don't have historic hang-ups.

Although only too well aware that the words "rugby" and "league" should not be used in that order in South Wales, there is much to be learnt from that sport's example — in Australia.

A seemingly unaccountable slump in popularity during the mid-80s had nothing to do with Mrs T but rather a common complacency within the upper echelons of the Australian Rugby League.

The "Ella Effect" was still being felt and, as a direct contrast to the situation that exists in Wales, the amateur code was taking hold. What did the Australian Rugby League do?

They brought in consultants, image-makers, added razz to the matazz and worked hard at reviving their game. It was an unadulterated success.

Rugby league in Australia has now expanded to include teams from all over the wide, brown continent, including a team from Western Australia, traditionally an Aussie Rules stronghold. But more teams meant more players.

Again the situation is not dissimilar from the ones many believe the Heineken League has created here. In Australia they fought hard to ensure the sport's standards did not drop. Criteria, tough criteria, had to be met before the new clubs were accepted into the Sydney-based competition.

Players from not just across Australasia were drawn into clubs, the leading British players "summered" in Sydney and so the dragnet continued until four more quality teams kicked into life three weeks ago when the new season started.

Far from diluting the Australian game the influx of overseas players has served to spice up the competition, helped to propagate homegrown talent and generally added another vivid dimension to a commercially-aware growth sport.

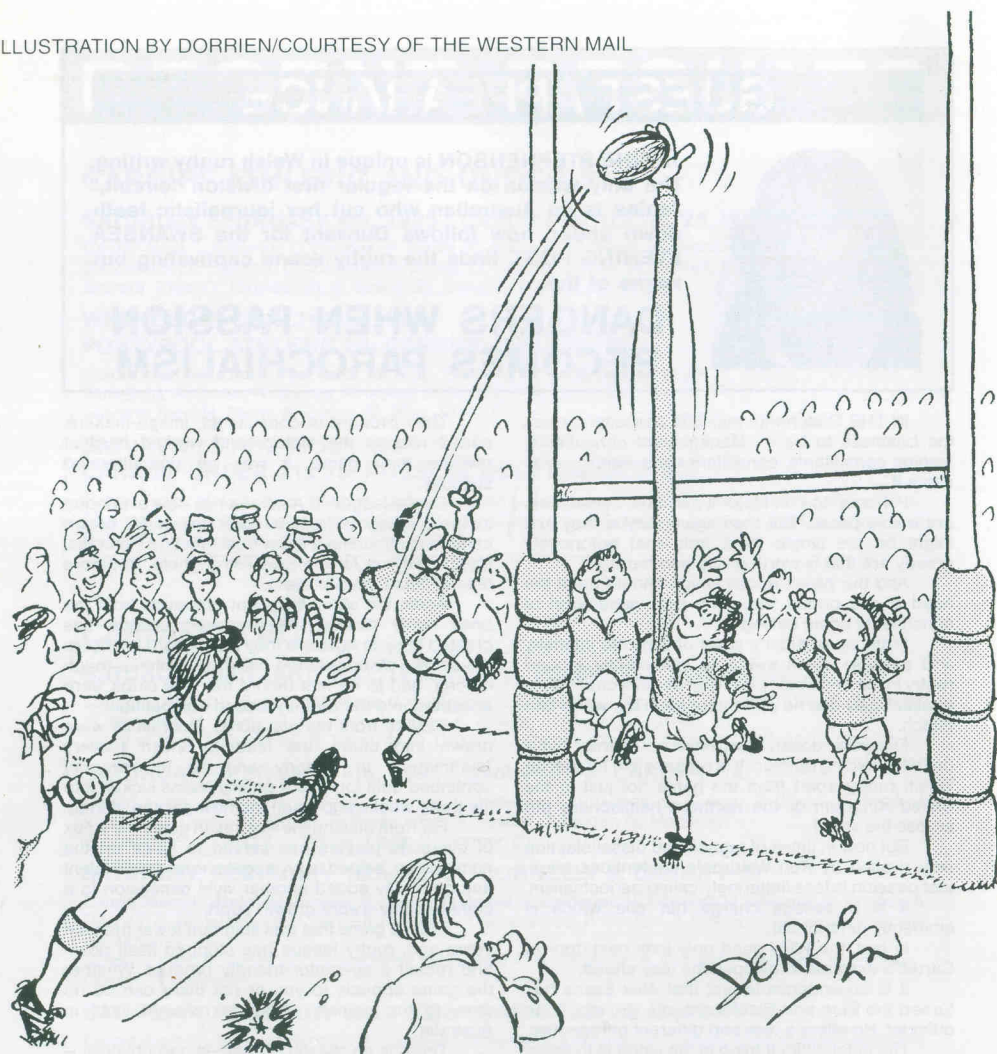

From a game that was stagnant fewer than ten years ago, rugby league has stripped itself down and rebuilt a spectator-friendly product. Whether the game appeals to you or not there can be no denying the game's ability to reinvent itself in Australia.

There is no reason — besides parochialism — that Welsh rugby could not follow that example. Obviously changes would need to be tailored to suit the game here, the people involved and the needs of the clubs — elite or otherwise.

The Test and County Cricket Board, another unfeasibly large body top-heavy with administrators, has managed to incorporate overseas players. Unfortunately the British input into the summer sport is not always of the quality necessary to succeed internationally but that is another matter.

Surely, though, a bit of networking between sports could benefit Welsh rugby. Take from each what you want, discard the dross and most importantly, learn from the mistakes they have made.

Now is the time to throw off the shackles of insularity — before it's all too late.

CARDIFF SCHOOLS RUGBY UNION

President: Mr. P. Cronin

Secretary: Mr. P. Davies

ON BEHALF of Cardiff Schools Rugby Union I would like to take this opportunity to extend a warm welcome to our visitors from Llanelli. Today's game is the second leg of The Morgan Griffiths Trophy Final, organised by the Welsh Schools Rugby Union. The first game ended in a 25-14 victory for Llanelli in a highly competitive match.

The winners will be decided on the aggregate scores over the two games.

We are extremely grateful to Mr Gareth Davies (Chief Executive), Mr Mervyn John (Chairman), Mr John Nelson (Secretary) and the Committee of Cardiff RFC for allowing us use of their facilities. It is a privilege to be able to play on the Arms Park and I am sure that the boys of both teams will find this a memorable occasion.

We are also indebted to Cardiff RFC for their generous sponsorship of our Union. This is a tangible sign of one of Wales' Premier clubs investing in the sport at the grassroots level. We are pleased to see so many former 'Cardiff Boys' involved at Cardiff RFC — either in playing, coaching or on Committee.

The partnership between the schools and the Rugby Club is one of mutual benefit and one that we hope to see prosper in the future.

Today's game should not be allowed to pass without a special message of thanks to the parents of the boys involved. Their good will and encouragement have contributed towards making the jobs of the teachers so much easier. I am sure that the boys themselves are appreciative of their parents support.

Finally, I look forward to another competitive game and I hope that everyone present enjoys the occasion.

THE CLUB CONNECTION

CLOSE connections have been maintained between the Cardiff club and the Cardiff Schools' Rugby Union since the first union was formed in 1902 (although some schools were playing back in the 1880s), with the boys playing on the Arms Park on Saturday mornings.

Today, Cardiff committee men such as Steve Blackmore, Terry Charles, Ian Eidman and Bob Newman all played for the schools as did Terry Holmes and players like Mike Rayer, Andy Moore and Mark Ring. Other famous names such as Bledwyn Williams (1937) and Meirion Roberts (1950) also represented Cardiff schools.

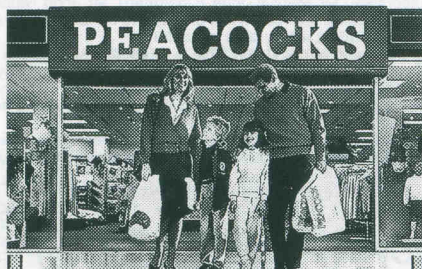

The Under 15 side this afternoon are coached by John Griffith and Roger Goode and they will aim to impress with the ambition to go for a Welsh Cap at Under 16 level next season.

J. E. MALCOLM THOMAS
explains what happens now when a front-row forward is sent off.

COMMON SENSE

The moratorium on Law changes extends until after the World Cup, but at their recent meeting the International Rugby Football Board made some minor amendments, one of which was highlighted when John Davies, the Welsh prop, was sent off during the international against England.

This FRONT ROW RULING comes into immediate effect.

In the event of a front row forward being sent off, the referee, in the interests of safety, will confer with the captain of his team, to determine whether another player is suitably trained or experienced to take his position. If not, the captain shall nominate one other forward to leave the field and be replaced by a substitute front row forward.

This may be done immediately, or if the player's captain wishes, after he has tried another player in the position.

Also, where a team has used all its front row forwards, the game will continue with non-contested scrums, as per Law Variation at Under 19 Level; i.e.,

- a) there is no contest for the ball,
- b) the team putting in the ball must win it.
- c) neither team is permitted to push.

Two other important decisions were made also with immediate effect.

A. OPEN WOUNDS Out goes the 10-minute restriction and the bleeding player may be temporarily replaced on more than one occasion.

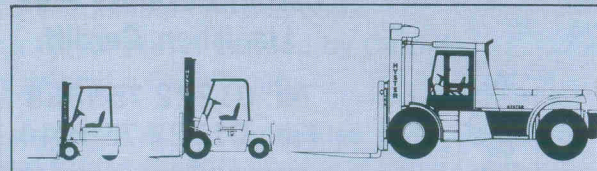

B. The decision was taken to revert to the former provision relating to SHOULDER PADDING. Padding can only be worn to protect an injury and MUST be attached to the body, i.e. (1) No harnesses; (2) No sewing padding into the jersey.

HANCOCKS HB

Hancocks HB is and always has been one of the most popular cask ales in Wales. As the 'HB' on the handpump suggests, it has been 'Home Brewed' in Cardiff since 1886.

HB's clean, crisp taste and delicate hoppiness has gained it a reputation as a refreshing, flavoursome pint which goes down well anytime.
