

CARDIFF RUGBY CLUB CENTENARY YEAR

CARDIFF v SYDNEY

SATURDAY, 23rd APRIL, 1977

KICK OFF 3 p.m.

Official Programme 10p

Cardiff v. Sydney

SATURDAY, 23rd APRIL, 1977

K.O. 3 p.m.

Excuse the sombre tone of these programme notes but being the last domestic fixture of the season it is a sad occasion. But what a season it has been — from the first game against Llandaff, followed by the Champions' Sevens, the World XV, Argentina, Italy, the Wolfhounds, the Barbarians and now Sydney in addition to the normal fixture list. It has been a season to remember for another hundred years. Add to that those superb wins in the Welsh Cup over Llanelli, Pontypool and Aberavon, and of course with the Final to come, no one can complain about the variety and quality of the fixture list.

There have been dramatic moments off the pitch as well. The various receptions: at the City Hall for the World XV, at the Royal for the old players (and who will ever forget the sight of Ewan Davies leading the Parade of Stars around the Arms Park in the match before the Reception), various dances and Centenary functions, the most spectacular of which was the unforgettable event at Sophia Gardens, and culminating in the Centenary Dinner at the Castle last Saturday. It has been a year when all sections of the Club have come together: the Centenary Aid Committee put on the spectacular at Sophia Gardens and the Supporters Club have worked all the year from the National Eisteddfod in Cardigan up to the moment, selling everything in Blue and Black. The forecourt will not be the same without Mr. and Mrs. Eddie John and Brian Bennett, our resident gypsies. The ladies have contributed with events of a very female character, and of course the office and bar staff have had their work cut out too.

All this would have been to no avail if the team had not done their bit. They haven't won everything, but they have played Cardiff Rugby. I venture to say that any team that is prepared to play Rugby Football as it is meant to be played will find that this team is more than prepared to meet them halfway, and is more than likely to beat them. We have seen some magnificent running Rugby this year, and I would like to congratulate Gerald Davies and his boys for that. If they pick up the W.R.U. Cup next Saturday it will be the end of a fantastic season.

On a personal note it seems likely that this will be the last time that I will put pen to paper for the Club. I am reminded of a statement by W. C. Fields, the great comedian. He once said: "That is the lady who drove me to drink, and I never even wrote to thank her." Cardiff Rugby Club showed me what Rugby is all about and I have no intention of not thanking them. To one and all, in every capacity, thank you for two wonderful decades.

It is in many ways appropriate that we should be playing Sydney in the last domestic fixture of our Centenary Season. It has been said that outside of Cardiff and Newport, the greatest centre of amateur Rugby in the world is in Sydney. The Greater High Schools there are a hot-bed of Rugby Football, and provide a steady flow of recruits to the clubs. Unfortunately, the clubs have an intense rival for talent in the form of Rugby League, headed by the St. Georges Club in Sydney. This is said to be the wealthiest oval-ball club in the world, its wealth being based on the income from a battery of one-armed bandits that puts Las Vegas to shame. This lures the youngsters away from the amateur game, and the depredations in the ranks of the Australian teams over the years have been severe.

In an effort to combat this, and in order to bring on their young players, the clubs in Sydney have embarked on a World Tour. They have already on this tour played in Japan and Canada, and in this country they have beaten Bucks and last Saturday they beat Devon.

The constituent clubs in the Sydney Rugby Union represented on this tour are Gordon D.R.U.F.C., East Suburbs, North Suburbs, West Suburbs, Sydney University, Randwicke, Gordon Centre and Port Hacking. They are captained by Garrick Fay, well known to Cardiff supporters as captain of the World XV we played in September, and as chief disciple of lateral thinking.

CROESO COBBERS.

D.J.H.

P.S. According to my somewhat dubious mathematics we need 17 points to get 1,000 points for the season in 41 games, including today. That runs out at an average of 24 points a match. Not bad at all. All the best next week against "them Black and Amber ———s".

KNOW THE LAWS

By FRED CROSTER

Early arrivals for the Easter Baa Baa's game will have watched the youth match between our lads and those from Llandaff R.F.C. As mentioned in the afternoon's programme, this annual encounter was refereed by Colin Wilson, the president of the New Zealand Referees' Society, who was over here, at his own expense, to attend Llandaff's Rugby Festival. B. & B. with me, free, cut down some of his expenses, and produced long Rugby talks.

One which concerned him, after watching a number of games and refereeing three, was the Maul and Ruck situation compared with what he was used to 'Down Under'. Our Sydney visitors will know what I mean.

Colin was horrified at the way in which, after a tackle, players go in to pick the ball up, as indeed the laws permit. He asserts that on the forthcoming Lions' tour hands galore will be hacked unmercifully as the burly, uncompromising All Blacks go in with their feet to get the ball back.

So much is this a part of their play that often the ball will be hit down to the ground, from the tackled player's hands, in order that the Maul will become a Ruck and so make it necessary for feet to be used as they want it.

They love to Ruck. Many critical coaches and critics agree that the Ruck is one phase of the game at which we do not excel.

As I have mentioned before, after a tackle, only a short period of time is allowed for a player to free himself if he is on his feet. If he fails to release himself he MUST release the ball immediately. If on the ground he MUST release it without playing it in any way.

If all players did this it would make life easier for them and referees and help to prevent the situation stated above.

This is one which no doubt the management will sort out before any Lions games are played.

That's the lot for this season. Law changes to discuss when we all come back. Till then, enjoy the summer.
